

Awl

Object Card

Plains Indians used this sharp pointed tool to punch holes in leather. By threading sinew through the holes, pieces of leather could be sewn together. The Plains Indians needed awls. They made clothing, tipis, and storage bags out of leather. The rib or leg bones of a buffalo made good awls.

