

Rawhide

Object Card

Plains Indians used tools of bone and stone to clean a buffalo hide. The cleaned hide would become tough and hard if it wasn't tanned. This was called rawhide. Rawhide could become a parfleche, drum head, or shield. Strips of rawhide were turned into rope. The tough material also was used to make soles of moccasins, and even

